clearly evident on what grounds he hopes to influence Quebec elections in his favor. It is the disruptive matter of conscription. There are probably many people throughout the dominion with an aversion to conscription who will not enter (talked by Quebec's premier, but surely this is not the time to make of it a prominent issue. No responsible federal politician has yet mentioned conscription as a point of contention, and it may be safely assumed that should such a policy become necessary in the interests of Canada, the electors of the whole dominion will be assembled, as was the case in 1917.

With the loss of record of French Canadians in the last war, and the fact that it is claimed the request to voluntary enlistment has been greater in Quebec than in other parts of Canada, it would appear that Mr. Duplessis is guilty of a diversion to his countrymen by raising such an issue at this time.

THE OUTSTRETCHED HAND

Up to the present no response has been made by President Boncompagni to the suggestion made by the Imperial Canadian mission that he may act as mediator in the present European conflict. Now that it is expected that either the government of Great Britain and France would welcome such mediation on the one side or for full terms by Her Majesty, the acceptance of which would satisfy their solemn declaration that nothing less than the removal of the constant menace of Hitlerism will satisfy their war aim. On the other hand, it is perhaps the German leader who at this time agrees to withdraw, of his forces from conquered territory as a basis for considering a peace settlement, that contingency will arise later and he, as was the experience of Wilhelm II, may not then be in a position to have any voice in the settlement.

The "outstretched hand" now offered to the allies belongs to a man upon whose pledged word no reliance can be placed, but who has declared "that I wish to spare any people this suffering." It is possible he is speaking cold, calculated, and he will be surprised there are no regrets for the suffering inflicted upon others; for the Swedish and Polish civilians starved and murdered by German hordes.

Conflict between these powerful antagonistic, industrially, will result in territorial sacrifices to millions, but the man upon whose judgment will finally be pronounced by his own people in beyond question, and that Hitler's German seems to be increasingly aware.

DISCORD IN QUEBEC

Speaking before the Canadian Club at Montreal recently, Colonel Wilfred Bower, of McGill University, pleaded for an understanding of the Quebec point of view in regard to dominion affairs.

This is the note to be desired by reason of the action of the Quebec premier in calling an election during a period of grave emergency in the national life of Canada. Already party division has arisen among the members of the province itself. Not only has the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, federal minister of justice, announced in the last few days in this election campaign, but the speech made by Mr. Duplessis at Three Rivers on Wednesday of this week, confirmed the fact that he has resulted in the resignation of one of his ministers, who gave an "open reason." It is well after these years contact with French-speaking citizens have ever part of the province, that this platform was it is really singular with them as it is truly only the speaking "behave."

Mr. Duplessis named his objections to federal policy, it is
